Code of Conduct

Respect and Inclusivity:

Use each participant's chosen name and pronouns. Treat all identities, orientations, and backgrounds with understanding, compassion, and consideration. Any form of discrimination, harassment, or hateful language is not acceptable.

Kindness and Consideration:

Approach every interaction with warmth, politeness, and mutual respect. While flirting and expressing interest are welcome, these behaviors must remain consensual, non-intrusive, and sensitive to the comfort levels of all parties.

Consent and Comfort:

Consent is sexy. A "NO" always means "NO". Consent shall be enthusiastic and a Yes can also turn to a NO at any time if the other person changes their mind. If you're unsure whether a certain topic is appropriate, simply ask before proceeding. Be attentive to both verbal and nonverbal cues; if someone appears uncomfortable, change the subject, pause, or allow them the space they need. Healthy flirting is welcomed but with due consent from all the parties involved. Any physical contact shall be only done if there is an enthusiastic consent of all the parties involved.

Active Listening:

Listen as much as you speak. Let others finish their thoughts and respond thoughtfully. Create a balanced, two-way dialogue where everyone feels heard, coriander and valued.

Communication:

We ask that people who are more extroverted (talkative) people, to try and tone down and give space. Be comfortable in silence.

We also ask introverted people to please speak up, as it is very important to use this time to show yourself.

No Pressure for Personal Details:

During the event, do not share or ask for personal contact information.

Our team will facilitate follow-ups after the event if mutual interest emerges. No one is obligated to disclose intimate details or commit to further engagement on the spot.

Safe and Supportive Environment:

If you feel uncomfortable or witness any inappropriate behavior, inform the Organizers immediately. We are committed to maintaining a positive atmosphere. Instances of misconduct may result in immediate removal from the event.

- Please approach any of the organizers
- Take a break when you want
- Please don't leave before talking to organizers if you feel discomfort

Inclusive Language and Messaging:

Use gender-neutral language, this event is open and welcoming to people of all sexual orientations, gender identities, and relationship styles. For example, instead of saying “ladies and gentlemen,” you can say “everyone” or “friends.”

Pronouns and Introductions:

Encourage participants to share their pronouns on their name tags (e.g., “Alex (they/them)”).
